Bloomberg Global Business Forum – decarbonisation trends in the Energy sector

- ❑ The most advanced energy companies have learned from the last fifteen years that a coherent strategy to tackle the complexity of climate change must focus on simple metrics. These often belie the challenge of developing new businesses, leading teams through change, and bringing key stakeholders along with them. In this session, we will hear first-hand what it takes – and will take - to end a company's contribution to the climate crisis. In short, to successfully decarbonise.
- ❑ With EIB President, Werner Hoyer
