*Description of the procurement

The river improvement and widening works have been designed in accordance with the provisions set out in the Comprehensive Master Plan of the Salado River Basin, as well as with the amendments introduced under subsequent consultancy contracts. These works are associated with the expansion of the hydraulic capacity of the river channel, through the removal of bottlenecks and high points in the riverbed, the enlargement of its hydraulic section, the adaptation of existing hydraulic structures, and the implementation of a closure structure at Rocha Lagoon.

Within this section, works are intended to ensure controlled channelized flow in the Salado River for a design discharge corresponding to a 10-year return period. This entails the implementation of a compound channel section, consisting of a minor channel conveying low-flow (dry-season) discharges, complemented by a major section with lateral berms of variable width. The lateral slopes range from 1:3 in the inner section to 1:4 in the major channel.
